Mr. Street was appointed to fill the vacancy and an application was made to him to allow his poll-books to be copied. This he refused to do, claiming that the order entered by the Supreme Court applies only to Mr. Ballard, while the Republicans assert that it refers to the registrar of that

In the Hustings Court yeaterday J. M. Barton, who for some time past has been managing the Opera-House at the corner of Euchth and Broad streets, was tried on the charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Police-Captain J. B. Angle was the first witness. He testified that while the Opera-House bore a very unsavory reputation he had no personal knowledge of what went on these.

Policeman Wilkinson's testimony was to the effect that the place was one of the worst of the kind in the city. He had seen as many as fourteen drunken boys come out of it one night. One of them, upon being taken to the station-house, said he got his liquor from Barton's, upon the strength of which he was arrested for selling to minors. In the Police Court, when the case came up, the youth swore that he got his whisker clsewhere, consequently the case was dismissed. got his whisker elsowhere, consequency

Continuing, the officer said about half of those who attended the Opera-House were boys, some of them mere children. The women who frequented the place were not respectable. Frequently he had seen liquor handed around and nearly every one in the andience would be drunk. Women were embraced in the box seats in full

'Neath Autumo's Moonlight.

Miss Hattie Harris, the highly talented daughter of our townsman, William Harris, has composed and has had published a very pretty waitz entitled "Neath Autumn's Moonlight." It is published by Oliver Ditson, of Boston, and is dedicated to Miss Laly Gay, Wilson's Lute Tond Bird of Song. Those who have seen the composition say it is unquestionably a work of decided merit, and evinces talent of a very high order. We congratulate our gifted young friend upon her brilliant achievement, and trust that it will be the radiant beginning of still more resplendent triumphs in this high realm of art.—Wilson (N. C.) Mirror. AN ALL-NIGHT HOUSE.

The testimony of Sergeant J. A. Cosby was put even more strongly than that of Policeman Wilkinson. Scores of little boys, he said, went there and were started on the road to ruin. So far as he knew all the females who attended the performances were of doubtful character. He had often seen people coming out the side entrances long after the plays were over, and alluded to the masque ball that was to have been held there last Christmas night.

Squire Loving Graves told of the character.

Follocuman Foster confirmed the evidence of the other witnesses, and said he had frequently seen men and women leave the house as late as four o'clock in the morn-Often the females would come out and go to other bar-rooms, sometimes alone and sometimes with acceptance.

A Plea for the Clerks. To the Editor of the Dispatch:

It has been truly sold a "fellow teeling makes us wondrous kind." Having been one of that class of people known as "clerks," who toil from early morn till late at night, and now a clerk who is set at liberty at 6 o'clock. I desire to say a word in behalf of those not quite so fortunate in that particular. I can see no reason why the clerks should be compelled to work later than the machinist, carpenter, brick-layer, or any other class of our worthy workinen, while there are numerous reasons why we should not be thus discriminated against. Many of the clerks are delicate females, who have to work not only to support themselves, but to take care of mother or baby brother. It is a shame that they should be kept behind the counter until after a summer's sunset. Three means of effecting relief present themselves:

1. United determination of the employ-

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

The city is stunk up with horrible odors that come from the fertilizer- or chemical-factories. Must a whole community be put to tortune for the benefit of one or two or a dozen individuals? Some parts of Church Hill will be rendered uninhabitable, and all parts of the city be sickened, if the nuisance is not abated. The favorite hour for deluging the city with this dreadful stench is late in the afternoon, when doors and windows are opened for a breath of fresh air, and people seek the parks for outer rest. Houses are filled and sleep driven away at night by the choking, strangling smell. Can there be no relief given? line Sun-Cured are Pure ( Sun-Cured Tobaccos, Tr
